

Happy 28th Birthday, Shalini.

I know life has had a lot of noise, responsibilities, and weight lately. There are always deadlines to meet, expectations to manage, and a world that constantly asks you to hurry up.

This year, I don't want you to feel the need to rush, prove anything to the world, or carry everything all at once. Give yourself total, unapologetic permission to just breathe, take things slow, and walk at your own natural pace.

At the bottom of this note is a private sanctuary built dedicated only for you. There are no deadlines, no social expectations, and no need to reply to anything. Open it whenever you're sitting outside, need a quiet minute, or just want to clear your head.

Here's to a calm, grounded, beautiful, and gentle 28th year.
